Recent Project

SirBiz - an online car rental reservation system, a freelance project that I have done. I never started the project really but I have done lots of change in terms of the design and architecture of the project. The client was developing this project and he came to me to fix some bugs on the system that they can't fix. When I first started on this it was purely a procedural program and I find it difficult to maintain so I started programming it in somewhat OOP. This way I can have multiple Components and can reuse all those components in the entire system.
